The Friends of Cromer Museum

Cromer Museum was opened 40 years ago in 1978. It is operated by the Norfolk Museums Service, with premises provided by North Norfolk District Council and funding obtained from various other sources.

However, there is always a need to provide extra funding for special occasions, and that is where the Friends of the Museum can help – and you can help by being a Friend.

Your membership entitles you to free entry to the Museum. You'll see that family membership taken out by parents or grandparents means that you'll have 'paid' for your membership with your first visit and you'll then be able to bring the children to all other Museum events at no extra cost.

There's a 10% discount in the Museum shop on production of your membership card and this applies to all Norfolk Museum Service museums.

The Friends themselves arrange talks, visits and fund-raising events – all good fun, as well as generating funds.

Do join us in our support of our splendid Cromer Museum, make the most of all its opportunities. – and help look after its next 40 years and more.

The permanent exhibitions at the Museum contain artefacts from days gone by. Fishermen's seal-skin hats are no longer used but 'ganseys' are still worn by some for special occasions.

As well as its winter series of evening talks, the Friends arrange occasional visits to places of historical interest in the county, here to Gressenhall Museum, with Dr David Whitehouse and a mammoth bone, ...

... and even beyond its borders. Friends visit the Flag Fen excavations near Peterborough.

A life-size 'mammoth' takes up residence outside the Museum for a Cromer Carnival day, arranged by the Friends.

Cromer Museum's own fisherman Valentine is serenaded for a 'Museum Night'.
